Forager Diego Bonetto and ecologist Alison Pouliot have joined forces to offer a series of foraging masterclasses in Lithgow and Oberon this autumn.

Diego will guide you through the identification of some of the highly sought after edible species, and Alison will expand on these to spotlight some of the other forest fungi and how they help hold ecosystems together.

You'll learn to identify edible fungi and their doppelgangers along with the bigger picture of their ecology and cultural importance.

The masterclasses run on April 26 and April 29 in Lithgow, and April 27 in Oberon.

More information and further workshops are on offer with Diego and Alison.
